Solomon Islands

What is KAMAIMAI?

Kamaimai is a natural syrup with nutrients that can be used in many different ways as an alternative sweetener.

It is traditionally made from the sap of a flowering coconut tree.

Gently simmered and reduced down over a wood fire, it produces a rich red-amber nectar, sticky like caramel, that is known as Kamaimai.

Our KAMAIMAI story

Kamaimai is a Pacific treasure produced in the beautiful coastal village of Titiana in the Western Province and Wagina Island in the Solomon Islands.

Tamisia and Noah, along with a local association of 'toddy' farmers or sap collectors, carefully nurture their coconut trees to ensure a sustainable supply of todody.

The boys behind the bottle: brothers Tam and Noah

Kamaimai's philosophy is all about supporting communities. Titiana and Wagina, two villages where Noah and Tam were brought up benefit from the production.

So many ways to use KAMAIMAI

Pour over pancakes and ice-cream

Use it for baking

Add to your tea or coffee

Mix it in a milkshake

Soothing for coughs

Use in sauces and cooking

So tasty, so healthy

We also mix our syrup with locally grown chilli to make Chilli Kamaimai, or fruits to create delicious jams.
